Les écoles doctorales sont rattachées aux établissements d'enseignement supérieur. Elles coordonnent leurs actions au sein du Collège des Etudes Doctorales. Leur rôle consiste à fédérer un ensemble d'équipes de recherche qui prennent en charge la formation et le devenir des doctorants.

Les critères déterminants pour l'accréditation des écoles doctorales sont les suivants :

- les liens avec la recherche et la qualité scientifique des laboratoires,
- la procédure de recrutement des doctorants et la politique de financement des thèses,
- le potentiel d'encadrement et la politique de formation,
- les partenariats avec le monde socio-économique,
- l'incitation à la mobilité et à l'ouverture européenne et internationale.

Université Côte d'Azur est accréditée, seule ou avec un autre établissement, pour accueillir les six Écoles doctorales suivantes.

Ecole Doctorale Sciences Fondamentales et Appliquées (ED SFA)	--
Ecole Doctorale Sciences et Technologies de l'Information et Communication (ED STIC)	--

SEARCH RESULTS

EN

Together with the CNRS, INSERM, IRD, INRAE, CEA, INRIA, the Côte d'Azur Observatory, Nice University Hospital, the Antoine Lacassagne Cancer Institute (CAL), SKEMA and foreign research institutions, Université Côte d'Azur structures its research activities around various research organizations in all the leading fields of science:

- 17 of the university's own research units,
- 22 joint research units,
- 1 of the CNRS' own research units,
- 3 emerging research units,
- 1 joint service and research unit,
- 1 Center for Humanities and Social Sciences (MSHS Sud-Est),
- several combined project teams with Inria and 1 collaborative research and innovation team, with SKEMA,
- 5 of the university's research federations and involvement in several national research groups,
- 2 joint international research units,
- several international associate laboratories and international research networks.

Université Côte d'Azur also focuses laboratory research on that of Schools of Art, in conjunction with its own laboratories. It is also supported by various bodies created by the IDEX UCAJEDI program to develop its research and innovation strategy. These include academies of excellence, innovation and partnership institutes, structural programs and the Centre for Modeling, Simulation and Interactions \(MSI\).

The Research Valorization and Innovation Unit (DRVU) provides contractual and administrative support for Université Côte d'Azur's research, technology transfer and innovation activities, while the Centre for Europe and Regions \(Maison de l'Europe et des Territoires\) supports, in particular, European projects.
